ST. ANSELM'S COLLEGE.

This institution was founded by the Rt. Rev. Hilary Pfraengle, O. S. B., Abbot of St. Mary's, Newark, N. J., at the cordial invitation and with the effective encouragement of the Rt. Rev. Denis M. Bradley, D. D., late Bishop of Manchester, N. H.

It is situated one half mile from city limits, sufficiently near for all necessary purposes, yet effectually removed from the noise and distractions of city life. The distance from the railway station to the college is about two miles; still, access is facilitated by the electric line which almost touches the college grounds.

All that have honored us with a visit, agree in saying that a more delightfully romantic site for college and monastery could not have been found within many miles. The college is situated on a plateau, about three hundred feet above the city. The selection of this site was very fortunate, as the extensive grounds, together with the inviting character of the surrounding country, assist to a great extent the religious, moral, and intellectual training which forms the primary object of St. Anselm's.

To the east we look down upon Manchester, the "Queen City," and Rock Rimmon, of legendary lore. To the west the eye is gratified by glimpses of model New England farm homes in the valleys, and, farther on, by the Uncanoonuc Mountains and Shirley Hill, this latter a well-known summer resort. Towards the north, within sight, are the Piscataquog and Merrimack rivers, both of Indian name and fame. Towards the south there are two beautiful pine groves, which offer a cool retreat during summer days.

The climate is remarkably salubrious, and a brief residence in this vicinity has been known to cure visitors long subject to catarrh or malaria.

The college is built of brick, with handsome granite trimmings. It is 184 feet in length and 60 feet in depth, with a front main projection of 40x20 feet.

The basement is twelve feet high and contains two large play halls for less favorable weather. These halls are fitted out with appropriate gymnastic apparatus. Besides this basement, there are three stories and an attic. The rooms are high, well ventilated, and furnished with everything necessary for the comfort of the students.

The college is well lighted by gas, with the latest improved burners.

The steam fitting is done in a most workmanlike manner, and the plumbing is conceded to be the finest of its kind in the state. The wash-rooms and the bath-tubs are supplied with hot and cold water. In every corridor there are two fire plugs with hose attached.

The food is wholesome and abundant. The large farm and gardens of the college furnish choice dairy produce, fruit, and vegetables.

An abundant supply of water for drinking, and all other purposes, is derived from two artesian wells. These wells are drilled to the depth of one hundred and eighty feet through solid granite, and all surface water is carefully excluded.

The college is within less than two hours' ride from Boston. It is connected by telephone with Manchester, Lowell, Boston, and other important towns and cities. Telegrams addressed to the college are transmitted by telephone.

Parents or guardians about to make a choice of college for their sons or wards are cordially invited to pay a visit to St. Anselm's, or to write for further particulars, addressing

THE REV. DIRECTOR, O. S. B.,

St. Anselm's College,
Manchester, N. H.

GENERAL INFORMATION.

The collegiate year, 1905-1906, will open Tuesday, September 5, 1905. The academic year is divided into two terms of five months each; the first term from September to January 31; the second from February 1 till the first Thursday after June 17.

All the classes are examined in the latter part of January and again at the close of the collegiate year. Reports are sent to parents or guardians four times during the year, to inform them of the conduct and improvements of their sons or wards.

Applicants that have attended another college will be strictly obliged to forward their last report and testimonials of their good standing. Upon entering, the student is examined in the main branches selected, and placed in the class for which he is found qualified.

Non-Catholic students will be exempt from religious instruction; still, for the sake of proper surveillance, they must appear in the oratory for morning and evening devotions.

Wednesday and Saturday afternoons are half-holidays.

In order that all students may have the same author and the same edition, the text-books should be procured at the college.

If a student has kept his text-books neat and free from marks, he may return them, and be credited according to the condition of the books. As this allowance is to be placed to his credit for the next scholastic year, this offer extends to those only who intend to return.

SPECIAL DIRECTIONS.

Every student should be provided with at least three suits of clothes, two for daily wear and one for Sunday, an overcoat, three suits of light underwear, three suits of heavy underwear, six pairs of socks, one dozen handkerchiefs, six shirts, collars, ties, four napkins, one napkin ring (initials), one tumbler, two pairs of heavy boots or shoes, one pair of high rubber shoes (rubber boots preferable), clothes brush, shoe brush and blacking, six towels, warm gloves, two hats, one winter cap, one pair winter blankets, hairbrush, mirror, comb, toothbrush, and toilet soap.

Students are required to have light shoes for indoor wear exclusively.

We would request students to provide a toilet box, or a small tin chest, for minor toilet articles.

All articles that may be sent to the laundry are to be distinctly marked with name and surname of owner. Students missing any article should apply without delay to the Prefect or to the Disciplinarian.

No money will be advanced by the college for clothing or shoes. A deposit of five dollars must be placed in the hands of the director for such unavoidable incidental expenses as mending of clothes or shoes, hair cutting, etc.

Telephone and telegraph communications to students, except in urgent cases, should be limited to recreation and free hours, as designated in Order of the Day.

Excepting day scholars, students will not be permitted to board or lodge outside of the college.

DINING HALL.

Students while absent from the college must have their clothing and books stored away in their trunks, otherwise the college authorities will not be responsible for them.

When parents have orders to give to their sons, it should not be to them directly but through the officials of the college.

As the college is beyond city limits it is useless to send letters by special delivery.

RULES OF CONDUCT.

1. Students must always be obedient and respectful to the officers and professors of the college.

2. Students' intercourse with one another should be regulated by charity and politeness, hence all rudeness, quarreling, use of profane or immoral language will be punished.

3. The place assigned to any one in the study or classroom, in the chapel, refectory or dormitory, is not to be changed without special permission.

4. Students must always be found where duty calls them. Standing about in the corridors during hours of study or class cannot be permitted.

5. All wanton as well as careless soiling, marking or damaging of desks, chairs, beds, windows, walls, etc., is forbidden, and the damage will be charged to the offender.

6. No student is allowed to leave the college without the Director's permission. The boundaries of the playgrounds will be explained to all, and strictly enforced. Permission to go to the city will not be granted except for urgent reasons, and by the Director solely. Any student going to the city without this permission is liable to expulsion.

7. Students are requested to deposit their pocket money with the Director or Disciplinarian, who will dispense it as prudence may suggest or occasion require.

8. All students who return to the institution after an absence of several days must report to the Rev. Director before they enter the study hall.

9. Unless there are extraordinary reasons to the contrary, letters may be written on Sundays only; they must invariably be handed to the college officials unsealed; all mail both sent and received, being subject to the Director's inspection.

10. Any student found possessing liquor, or convicted of having used it, is liable to expulsion.

11. The use of tobacco will not be allowed without the permission of parents or guardians.

12. Day scholars and half-boarders are warned, under penalty of immediate expulsion, not to bring or forward letters, notes, tobacco, nor even things in themselves harmless. Day scholars who are convicted of having in any way molested or insulted any person on their way to or from college will receive a public and severe punishment.

13. During study time and class hours, going to and coming from the chapel, in the corridors, refectory, lavatory, and bathrooms, strict silence and order must be observed.

14. Exclusive friendship or companionship of two or three cannot be tolerated, being opposed to charity.

15. Any student found incorrigibly idle, or habitually disregarding these rules, or exerting an immoral influence, will be expelled.

COURSES OF STUDIES.

The aim of St. Anselm's is to educate youth either for the sacred ministry and the learned professions, or for business pursuits. As Christian educators we would fall short of our aim if we allowed either the heathen classics, or the matter-of-fact branches of commercial studies, utterly to engross the minds of our pupils. Strict attention is paid to catechetical instruction and to the moral and religious training of students.

There are two distinct courses of instruction, Commercial and Classical.

A Preparatory Course is open to students not sufficiently advanced to enter the Classical or Commercial Course.

DEGREES.

The degree of Master of Accounts is conferred on a student, who, after finishing the Commercial Course, passes a satisfactory examination, both oral and written, in Bookkeeping, Commercial Law, Mathematics, and English.

A diploma is awarded to the students in Sophomore class who attain the required average in Latin, Greek, English, and Mathematics. This diploma serves as a certificate for admission to Philosophy.

The degree of Bachelor of Arts is conferred on a student who has the required average in all the branches of Senior class, and passes a satisfactory examination. The aspirant is also required to write an essay on a literary, scientific or political subject, a copy of which will be kept in the college archives.

Bachelors of Arts may receive the degree of Master of Arts by devoting two years to a learned profession or to literary or scientific studies.

To take a degree or diploma the entire last year of the course must have been made at this college.

CLASSICAL COURSE.

The Classical Course is designed to impart a thorough liberal education. It is conceded by all men of thought that this course is the only one that fully develops all the faculties, forms a correct taste, trains the student to use all his powers to the best advantage. It is too general to be final; after its completion comes the study of some special art or science to fit one for a practical calling in life.

The eight years of classical studies embrace Religious Instruction, Latin, Greek, English, French or German, Mathematics, History, Logic, Rhetoric, Elocution, Composition, Literature, Natural Philosophy, General and Special Metaphysics, Ethics, Physiology, Biology, and Astronomy.

COMMERCIAL COURSE.

The object of this course is to impart to young men a thorough commercial and business education. A commercial education in college means, or ought to mean, more than good handwriting, correctness and facility in figuring, and a tolerable knowledge of bookkeeping. Would any one call him an educated man, who, though he writes a good hand, is quick at figures, with a fair knowledge of bookkeeping, yet makes the most glaring mistakes in spelling and in syntax, and is utterly ignorant of higher mathematics, history, and literature, not to speak of such useful branches as shorthand and typewriting?

Three years is the least that can be demanded for a good commercial education for a beginner. To enter this course the applicant should have a fair knowledge of arithmetic and English grammar.

The Commercial Course embraces Religious Instruction, Arithmetic, Bookkeeping, Commercial Law, Penmanship, English, French, Elocution, Composition, Algebra, History, and Geography.
